View from the Chair

As the newly elected Chairman I want to first thank you for your hard work. Social Workers have an awesome responsibility, yet manage to do it with respect for the dignity of all. You deserve to know that you are appreciated, that what you do brings hope and health to your clients. You don't hear it often enough and may at times feel that no one knows how difficult your job is. Your Board recognizes you as the most caring, professional and helpful people on the planet. Tell yourself that every day and know that what you do is IMPORTANT! I applaud you.

I wanted to share information about Social Work regulation of which I was unaware until I attended Board Member Training provided by the Association of Social Work Boards. If you are not familiar with that organization visit their website <http://www.aswb.org>.

ASWB is integral to the regulation of Social Work. The concept of regulating and licensing Social Work practice is relatively recent. From the 1960s through the '80s jurisdictions began to recognize the need and formulate legislation regulating the profession. Now all the states in the U.S., the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and several Canadian provinces have some form of social work regulation in place and most are members of ASWB, using their tests, the Disciplinary Action Reporting System (DARS) and other ASWB services. Many Boards have incorporated much of the "Model Social Work Practice Act" developed and updated by ASWB so that we are up to date in our work as regulators.

The types of regulatory bodies differ greatly. Many states have a "composite board" – regulating more than one profession (usually all mental health related). Others, including ours, have an "independent" board – regulation of only the Social Work profession. Boards may regulate the practice act, title protection, or a combination of both. There are categories that are exempted by both types of boards and educational levels of practice regulated. There is the procedure used to compile the Board, the size of the Board and whether it will have a "public" component (one or more members who are NOT of the profession(s) being regulated). WHEW! There are even more issues: voting rules, the complaint procedure, how often to meet, etc.

"You deserve to know that you are appreciated."

I believe we are fortunate to have an independent Board (regulating Social Work practice and title protection), to have representation on the Board for every Congressional District, a reasonable number of members, and a requirement to license all the educational levels. Although not legally required to, we meet monthly to be timely in our duties. We also have the benefit of a member of the Attorney General's staff at each of our meetings to advise us on issues of law, as well as an incredibly efficient

Executive Director and staff. This gives our Board a flexible, yet firm foundation. We are not divided among disciplines; we have enough members to represent a variety of viewpoints, but not so many that discussions are too lengthy (or contentious) which allows us time to get our work done. I'm not saying we always agree! But we are respectful of each other and our mission. I am proud to be a part of this Board and congratulate everyone involved for their hard work and dedication.

Part of that work has been to update our Administrative Code. I am delighted to advise that a draft has been completed which we believe includes changes to make our regulatory board stronger and more responsive to the needs of the public. The Office of Public Examiners has reviewed the changes, we have some "tweaking" to do, then a Public Hearing will be scheduled, notification of Hearing posted and your input solicited. Watch the website for further information and contact us at any time. Respectfully,

Paula S. Clark, LBSW

PIP and Continuing Education Hours

As all are aware the continuing education requirement is here to stay. We all have to accept it. As a PIP you are required to report 20 hours in addition to the 30 hours needed for you license. The PIP is not a license but a Certification. Unfortunately too many people are submitting hours to the board and asking us to "carry over" any "extra" hours they reported with their other renewal. If you want the hours to go towards a different renewal then don't send them in. We will not "break apart" the credit to allow part of it to be used and the rest to be carried over. The classes were given credit at the end or completion of the program as a whole and should remain that way. We will not separate part of the credits from a certificate of completion. I know for some this is not a problem since they report way more the hours than they need but for those who just barely meet the requirements this may be an issue. Please try to select your classes to fit your needs that are 30 for the LCSW and 20 for the PIP and submit only the hours for the renewal that is due. We can not keep up with your hours for you.

The New Social Work Brochure Is Ready: A Guide to Social Work in Alabama

The Board has put together a social work brochure that is now ready for consumers. It answers questions like who are social workers, what social workers do, when can a social worker help, and where and how social workers are found. This and the next page are excerpts from the brochure. Please let us know what you think of it.

Thanks.

Who are Social Workers?

In Alabama, there are different kinds of Social Workers depending upon the amount of education that they have and the type of work that they do. Social Workers are regulated by Alabama law and required to maintain standards of professional conduct.

What do Social Workers do?

Social Workers work with children, families, elderly, and physically and/or mentally handicapped adults who have needs. Many Social Workers are employed with social service agencies, schools, hospitals, and mental health facilities. They often intervene on behalf of children and adults when they are in dangerous situations and unable to protect themselves.

Social Workers go into homes and out into the community in order to reach the people that they are trying to help. They work closely with other professionals, such as doctors, therapists, and teachers. Social Workers are advocates for the people that they serve.

When can a Social Worker help?

Social Workers know a lot about their communities and how to connect people with services that can improve their lives. Although the social worker's job is to help people, their goal is for people to be able to take care of themselves and become a contributing member of society.

Social Workers can help families who are experiencing a loss or separation through counseling and referral to community resources. They can also provide both financial and emotional support to families and adults who are experiencing a crisis.

Social Workers are often needed when agencies such as law enforcement and child protective services intervene on behalf of children and adults who are being harmed. They assist in the placement of children in foster homes when it is unsafe for them to remain in their own homes or their parents are not able to care for them because of special needs. Social Workers can arrange mentoring for children who may not have an adult role model in their lives.

Where can I find a social worker?

Social Workers can be found in hospitals where they are available to assist with discharge planning for elderly persons. They also work in nursing homes where they assist families with admissions and help aid the elderly or handicapped person's move into the facility. They often work with families to arrange at-home care for persons recently discharged from hospitals or mental health facilities.

Social Workers also can be found in schools where they help children with problems getting the education that they need. They provide counseling and support to parents to help them understand how to work with teachers and counselors so that their child's educational needs are met. Social Workers may become licensed as private practitioners and provide individual and group counseling.

Social Workers are also employed in state agencies, such as Education, Department of Human Resources, Mental Health, and Public Health as well as local organizations.

Brochure Continued:

How do I find a social worker?

Social Workers can be found in the yellow pages in your telephone book under Social Service Organizations or Mental Health Services. Contact the Juvenile Court, Mental Health Center, Department of Human Resources, or Health Department where you live to find a Social Worker that can address your particular needs. Your local school system will be able to help you find a Social Worker if there is a problem relating to your child's education. Your local Council on Aging can direct you to services for elderly adults. The Chamber of Commerce in your town can provide you with a listing of social service providers in your area. The local United Way in your area can direct you to non-profit agencies that employ Social Workers that can help you with a number of issues.

You may also contact the Board of Social Work Examiners by calling 1-334-242-5860 or 1-888-879-3672 or you can go to our website at www.socialwork.alabama.gov for a list of licensed Social Workers in Alabama.

This Brochure is available to consumers now. Hopefully we will be able to print them in bulk and send them to all public agencies interested by request very soon. Should you need a copy of the Brochure you may contact the Board's office.

Social Work Bulletin Board on Line

We now have a "Bulletin Board" on line. It's still under construction and has not yet been fully developed. Hopefully it will be a place where you can go to find resources such as employment and education. If you or your agency has current information you would like to share with other social workers you can pass it on to me, brenda.holden@swb.alabama.gov

It is the Board's desire to use this Bulletin Board to assist licensees in current topics and information that can be helpful, useful and educational for all.

You'll need to check it out regularly to see if there is anything of importance to you. You can find it on our webpage, from the "Home Page" it can be found at the bottom of the list as "Bulletin Board". Currently it can not be viewed from any other page. As soon as it is finalized we'll add it to the regular tap list.
